

The Attack

“What happened, how did I get here?” I said to myself as I get up sitting on the long wet grass. “It must have rained so that answers my question of why I’m so wet.” I stand up as I look around I see this chest. I run over to it... bang! I run into some sort of force field and I see a generator... thump! There’s something behind me.

I run to the generator and smash it and then it throws me to the chest. I open it and grab everything. Some sort of instruction manual pops up in front of me telling me what to do when I get items from chests. I swipe my hand along and this inventory pops up I tap the sword. The sword pops out of the sky and I pick it up then I swung it at the big giant frog behind me. There was blood going down my giant crystal like blade then down the handle and then covered my hand.

I walked down the wet footpath and I heard a rumble coming from my stomach till I came to a little town. I see another chest but this time there’s no generator near it. I open the chest to find a lot of money and when I say a lot, I mean like 5000 dollars. I put it in my inventory then I walk into the town.

I walk around for about 5 minutes till I find a food stand. I got some coins out of my inventory and bought chicken, chips, meat, bacon and then I came to some chairs and tables and ate some of my chips until... bang! I put all my food in my inventory then go look out at the explosion when I see a figure coming straight at me and fast. A bomb starts flying at me and I jump out of the way then I see the man that ran off in the opposite direction. I run after the man. I get a bit closer to the man and I jump as far as I could. I managed to just grab his leg. “What are you doing blowing up buildings?” I questioned.

“It wasn’t me it was my boss!” cried the man.

I get up and then walk away. A man runs past pushing me out of the way and I chase after him. The man grabs a sword and he turns around swinging the sword around at me. I block the attack with my sword. Now we start just flying attacks at each other trying to at least hit a swing. I grab a smoke bomb out of my inventory and I throw it at the man. Smoke fills the air and I swing my sword at him. He must not have much health because he is nearly dead.

The smoke clears up and he swings his sword at me a few times taking out the tiniest bit of my health. I hit him again and then he falls to the ground. “Why did you do this to me.... Son”

